

Fun with Words

Words, phrases and even interjections like “Wow,” “Oh” and “Yay” give meaning to thoughts, beliefs, emotions and desires. With words, we explain what’s important to us and we describe what we want the most. With words, we share our strongest feelings and we express our deepest beliefs. Today, we’re going to have fun using words as the basis for all that’s planned for today.

Look At This Story!

Pick a picture, any picture! Whether it’s a picture in your surroundings, online or in a magazine or book nearby then write about it. Your story can include what you see, how you feel about it and what it means to you. Whether it makes you laugh and smile, or angry: write a short story to see how creative you can be based off of a picture!

Do You Get What I’m Saying?

How cool would it be to have your own secret language? Here’s how you can do it. First, pick five words or phrases you always say. Then, come up with a symbol to represent those words or phrases. Then, write a sentence using your favorite words but replace them with your coded symbols. See if you people who know you can figure it out!

Say It a Different Way

Do you want to learn how to speak a foreign language? Four Camp Happy friends will teach you how to say simple words and phrases – all about happiness – in this great video. Check it out!

Song Lab: This is the Remix

Whether you sing like Beyoncé or squawk like a chicken, there’s a song that inspires us all and speaks to our souls. Think of your favorite artist or lyricist. Then, try to rewrite the song to something that’s personal to you. Try to incorporate yourself, a pet or relative into the lyrics and see how your new song comes turns out! If you know how to play an instrument, add accompaniment to it! Ask permission to record your song and have fun!

Journal Entry

Write down the lyrics to the song you wrote (and all the notes to go with it if possible) so that you can look back on it in the future!

